

For relatives we may have never known or cannot know no, more: Loved ones lost in conflict, perishing in war.

To WEAR A POPPY

*When we buy a poppy, approaching Remembrance Day
There's a method we should sport it - in a special way
Don't show it off too early - as politicians do
Or have it on your right side - that is quite wrong too*

*Place it on your left side so others will not mock
Make sure the leaf that's with it - is eleven of the clock
I reckon it's noteworthy to pin it on correct.
When donning this fine emblem, expressing your respect.*

*Of course it's not compulsory but that's the way I see
One reason why you're wearing it - is because we're free!*

Joe Earl.

For all who have and are still fighting that we may be safe and free, the survivors and the injured and caring family: "We must remember them" KG.

For their sake - wear a poppy, if you wear a poppy, wear it with pride. It is also simply asked that you wear a poppy to support the people that are currently undertaking the defence of our right to wear it, wherever they may be in world.
